

As the leading professional body for Enterprise Risk Management, we believe education and the willingness to learn are amongst the most powerful ways to change the world. In designing and delivering our qualifications, training and thought leadership, we are committed to diversity and equality. We aim to be a part of positive change within the societies in which we work and live.

The reaction to the tragic death of George Floyd serves as a wake-up call to everyone across the world about the discrimination and injustice that endures in so many ways. All IRM members, staff and the board must be at the forefront of our drive against inequality and we recognise that one of the most difficult things is not changing others but changing ourselves. We continue to strive to ensure the Institute of Risk Management is free from all form of discrimination.
